By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Consent 1921, by Janesville Gazette.
Washington—The far-reaching process of settling America's war debts without depending upon the allied countries has begun.
President Harding himself announced the decision of the administration to issue through the treasury department a new form of investment which is designed especially for the man and woman of small income.
After all the experiences of the war with every kind of security, the government has decided to issue a new form of investment which is designed especially for the man and woman of small income.
The new certificates will be sold at $20 each, and will pay the purchaser $25 if not redeemed for five years.

The government will take care of about $600,000,000 worth of 1918 treasury certificates which mature about a year hence, and to that extent the proceeds of the new security will be used in the redemption of the old bonds. The new certificates will be sold at $20 each, and will pay the purchaser $25 if not redeemed for five years.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Monroe—Pleading guilty to charges of transporting liquor and admitting they were employed by an organized liquor ring, three men arrested in a sensational raid by the county sheriff and undersheriff near Chicago, Dec. 10, were given the maximum fine of $1,000 and costs each by Judge George Grimm in Green county circuit court Wednesday.
The men are J. N. Murray, Chicago, alleged ringleader; Walter McComb, Chicago, driver of the car containing the 30 gallons of bonded whiskey; and James Peters, Chicago, driver of the car carrying the weapons and ammunition.
McComb and Murray appeared before Judge Grimm Tuesday afternoon, ready to be sentenced. Malcolm McComb, who was arrested with them, was sentenced to the same term.

BATTLESHIP "COLORADO," WEST VIRGINIA MAY BE RETAINED BY UNCLE SAM

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington—With the probability that the United States would retain two additional ships of the Maryland class, as an offset against the retention of the superdreadnoughts, becoming almost a certainty Thursday, there were indications that the Colorado and West Virginia would be the ships selected for retention, rather than the Colorado and the Washington. While the West Virginia was the last of the class to be launched, it was the only one under construction at the Washington. It is said, and her retention would permit work to continue in two construction yards instead of one.

at the break-up of the session, it was indicated they would not meet again. This was taken to forecast final and complete agreement on limitation of naval armament as regards the United States, Japan and Great Britain.

De Valera and Supporters May Demand Referendum on Ratification.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Dublin—As the Dail Eireann met Thursday for continuation of its second session, it was declared by supporters of Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith that they and the other signatories of the Irish peace agreement now felt certain of an ultimate majority in favor of the treaty.
They declared no prominent persons in any part of Ireland had yet protested against their action in signing an agreement with the British cabinet. President De Valera's objection to the treaty was said to be certain details of the treaty, which he thinks would have been improved on if it had been resubmitted to him and the Dail cabinet before it was signed. The general impression in Dublin Thursday was that Lord Carson's speech in the house of lords Wednesday night had helped Collins and Griffith in their fight in the Dail for the treaty's ratification. It was pointed out in this connection that Lord Carson had pictured the English action toward Ulster in a light that bore out the prediction of Michael Collins at Armagh last September, when he said England would use Ulster as long as it suited her purpose and then throw her over.

DE VALERA AND DELEGATES IN STARK TILT ON FLOOR

YOU TELL 'EM

Reporters ask a daily question of five persons. Here's what they say:

Question—Do you like the plan for making the new high school building a great community center and if so, why?
Answer—R. E. Ellinger, 202 S. Academy street—"The people of this community are paying for the new high school, and as a municipality it is their duty to make the best use of it. I think the new high school should be used until a community building is provided."

W. J. Hall, 616 Monroe street—"It is a fine idea. The coming idea of the use of the school is not wrong. Using the building for the community will arouse more interest in the school work among the parents. The school should be used for as many other purposes as possible."

F. L. Manteloff, 605 Prospect avenue—"There is nothing more appropriate for a community center than a school. It is a fine idea. The coming idea of the use of the school is not wrong. Using the building for the community will arouse more interest in the school work among the parents. The school should be used for as many other purposes as possible."

Rev. Charles M. Olson, pastor of St. Mary's church—"I certainly approve of the plan. There is a lack of auditorium in Janesville, and as the public in general is paying for the new high school, it is their duty to make the best use of it for public and patriotic purposes."

Mrs. Maurice Dietrich, 300 Holmes street—"I think it is a fine idea. The coming idea of the use of the school is not wrong. Using the building for the community will arouse more interest in the school work among the parents. The school should be used for as many other purposes as possible."

MAIL ROBBING IS UNPROFITABLE JOB

Bandit Gets Little and Usually Loses Life or Liberty.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Robbing government mail is a dangerous and unprofitable occupation, according to Joe P. Johnston, postoffice inspector here in charge of the Kansas City district. Mr. Johnston admits that registered mail robberies have been in distinct vogue recently, but he insists that they do not really offer the opportunity to get rich quick that those who attempt them believe exist.

Rather, says Mr. Johnston, they offer a remarkable opportunity to get killed or sent to prison quick. Then he recites the facts that have been taken from many mail bandits.

"They all get killed or sent to prison in the long run," he remarks, "and usually it isn't such a very long run either."

Must Face Marines
Robbing the mails, the veteran postoffice inspector says, probably will be less attractive than ever since the government has stationed marine guards on trains carrying valuable mail, and provided escorts of "devil dogs" for small trucks and guards for mail cars.

The instruction given the marines are very explicit. It is a guard's duty to know who is authorized to handle mail, and to allow no one else to handle it. It is his duty to know who is permitted in the room or car where mail is handled and to permit no one else there.

It is his duty to stop anyone attempting to rob the mails, to take that person, dead or alive, or to be able to show a satisfactory reason why, and the reason needs to be a good one.

One life or liberty is worth more than a few dollars' worth of mail.

Under Secretary Denby's orders, says Mr. Johnston, "about the only reason that is considered valid is that the bandit has killed the marine guard."

"There has been an epidemic of mail robberies recently," Mr. Johnston continued. "I believe the reason is that a lot of young fellows believe there is easy money in large amounts to be had. That is a mistake. Ordinarily the loot obtained from registered sacks is not easily negotiable, and the bandit, even if he gets away with it, gets a small proportion of the value of the loot."

SMALL INCOME IS GIVEN OPENING IN NEW INVESTMENT

the smaller certificates. In other words, the refunding process is in an experimental state and the treasury will know more about the method of refunding America's debts after the new issue of certificates has been received by the general public.

No "Flashy Campaign"

A "stunt" campaign in selling the new certificates, as the government is depending upon the press, the postoffice and the banks to let the small investor know about the opportunity. A dignified effort will be made by the treasury department to reach the small investor, and it is felt by the government that at least a security has been gained which gives the "small fellow" as good a chance as the "big fellow" on attractive government securities.

Officials say there is no special relationship between the announcement of the new issue of treasury certificates this week and the fact that liberty bonds are back at their original par value. But the fact is the treasury has been working on the new plan ever since it was apparent that liberty bonds were starting back to par.

Liberty Bonds at Par

The psychological value, nevertheless, of announcing the new issue at the very moment when liberty bonds touch par value is appreciated. So many small investors bought liberty bonds without knowing that market values would cause them to drop in price that the government is now benefited by being able to point to the par value of bonds as proof of the original promises of the government.

Still the government has had to take into account that many investors, disappointed by their experience with liberty bonds, might be cold toward government investments unless given an absolute guarantee of the par value of a security. The new certificates cannot fall in value. They are redeemed whenever an investor needs money and he sustains no loss at all—in fact he collects interest besides. There is to be a continuous sale, moreover, of these certificates. The date of purchase doesn't affect the value, as was the case with war savings stamps.

No Debt Interest

The new process doesn't increase the public debt, but rather redistributes it. The intention is to create an army of new investors, touching a class which might not otherwise be disposed to save. The number of plans to be used in refunding the war debt as a whole will continue to increase from time to time in order that all classes of investors may be reached. But in general the government has embarked on a policy that looks toward the gradual refunding of the war debt by borrowing from the public at stated intervals and offsetting these borrowings by gradual accumulations of surplus from taxes and imports.

In other words, the government must, on the assumption that Europe cannot pay America 10 billions of war debts and that if anything is paid in the Duroc-Jersey breeders, including the sales breeders will meet in Janesville Friday afternoon, to decide on their sales advertising program and whether the sales will be held at the fair grounds or in the Duroc City Implement and Duroc East Janesville and Hixson streets.

Some of the best stock in the county is to be offered on the auction block during the four sales in January and February. The Duroc breeders are interested in home farmers in purchasing better stock.

"We do not expect excessive prices or want them but do want county interest in our sales," reports the committee.

CITIES MAY LAND HARD ON LIQUOR

Way Opened for Bone Dry Enforcement, Declares Commissioner.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MILWAUKEE.—Interest in prohibition enforcement for a time will center in common councils of Wisconsin cities. W. Stanley Smith, prohibition commissioner, believes after a study of the attorney general's opinion holding that municipalities have a right to suppress the illicit traffic in liquor.

This opens the way to an era of actual bone-dry prohibition, wherever a city council is inclined toward rigid enforcement, he says. It is his opinion that the power to enact penal ordinances concerning prohibition gives authority to the cities to go further than the state in its regulations.

With the adoption of the new general charter law, Jan. 1, Mr. Smith expects municipal legislation regulating drug stores, doctors, dealers in patent medicines and soft drink factories. He anticipates the enactment of the attorney general's opinion, Mr. Smith says, for any city to make it illegal for drug stores to handle intoxicants, making it impossible for doctors to issue prescriptions for such drugs.

Prohibition law violators, under the new interpretation, face prosecution by all three enforcement agencies, the national government, state and city. Arrest and conviction under a municipal ordinance would require that the convicted person be tried and sentenced again under the state statute, the opinion states.

MORE PROSECUTIONS UNDER MARKET LAW

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MILWAUKEE.—Further prosecutions under the inspection provisions of the new state marketing law were started Thursday by the department of markets in Oshkosh, Eau Claire and Columbus counties. Defendants in six other cases instituted by the department have pleaded guilty, making it impossible for the state to carry the litigation to the supreme court to test its inspection powers.

It is expected a Minnesota corporation, against which action was started Thursday, will fight the case. This will involve the disputed legal question as to whether or not the department of markets has power to apply state grades to products which are destined for interstate commerce. The concern is shipping without grade potatoes from Wisconsin to Minneapolis and St. Paul, according to the marketing officials.

The state department announces that potato dealers at the recent market exposition in Milwaukee, by a vote of 35 to 2, approved the grading and inspection service. Buyers have reported that the grades are resulting in better profits for the potato industry of the state.

Enlightenment Is Strength of Nation—Blaine

Oconomowoc.—That government will live longest that rests its security not upon military force, but upon an enlightened public opinion, and which brings the social and economic order to the level of justice, Governor Blaine declared here today, in dedicating the new Oconomowoc national guard armory.

The governor said the armory was not dedicated to war, that it was dedicated to peace and order and security, because he said, the nation at guard of Wisconsin is not a militaristic organization, but rather one whose energies have been directed along the lines largely of civilian activity.

"A nation resting its strength or security upon arms becomes weak and impotent," Governor Blaine declared. "No people ever submitted to be governed by the sword and I predict no people ever will."

In the last 40 years, the Wisconsin national guard has been called into service 16 times, one for service during strikes and lockouts, and on those four occasions only twice was there any serious trouble involving actual military force.

MILK PRODUCERS IN EAST GET TOP PRICES

Better prices for pooled milk marketing were cited during the recent meeting of the Dairymen's League in Jersey City, N. J., which has 59,354 members of whom 50,555 are pooling to market their milk for the New York district. The average price received by the eastern dairymen was reported to be 10 percent higher than other milk producers in the United States.

"The cooperative plan of marketing products of the American farmer has come to stay," reported G. W. Stearns, league president. "More farmers believe in it every day, more business men believe in it and more people generally when they understand its values."

The eastern league is one of the strongest farm organizations, and largest of its type, in the world. It was to achieve results obtained by the Dairymen's League that the marketing company and milk producers association was organized for the Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana district.

RODD OUSTER GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Right of trial courts and particularly the circuit courts of the state to issue and enforce commitments for contempt, free from interference by the executive of the state.

Official Interest High.

The whole matter was brought directly before the supreme court, the petition states, "because all of the circuit judges have such an official interest in the determination thereof that it is not suitable or seemly to ask or expect any one of them to try any action or proceeding in which such a question is involved."

It is declared in the petition that Assumundson, appointed by Governor Blaine to replace Rodd, "is assuming to act as sheriff and has not commenced any proceeding to test the title of his claim, and so far as the relator is able to ascertain is not preparing or attempting any such action."

Should the court assume jurisdiction of the case and issue the writ of certiorari, it is believed Governor Blaine will take no action to remove Rodd from his office until the supreme court can make a determination of the issues involved.

Y. W. C. A. TO FIND WORK FOR GIRLS

Service Committee Formed as Central Agency for Jobs, Rooms.

Organized as a clearing house for aid and accommodation to the girls of Janesville, the service committee of the Young Women's Christian association decided Tuesday upon a more systematic mode of operation. Headquarters have been established at the Y. W. C. A. rooms on East Milwaukee street. Welfare service to the community and the "Y" is planned to be the main object of the committee.

Handling the unemployment situation among young women is the first task to be undertaken. It was stated Tuesday that an average of seven girls daily are seeking work through the "Y". This includes all forms of domestic, office, and factory work.

Girls desiring work, employers wanting help, and housewives are requested to communicate their needs to the service committee through the "Y". The committee hopes to centralize all inquiries and bring girls and employers together.

Many seek odd jobs. It has been discovered recently that many girls here are anxious to serve at tables at community and club banquets, house parties and home dinners. People desiring such help, girls trained to give satisfaction, can get them by giving the "Y" advance notice. There are girls also who will do dishwashing in order to get extra money.

Many families who have young children who detain them from going out in the evening may be brought into contact with girls who will take charge of the children. There is one girl in Janesville, who does not need extra money, but who has been preparing this service as an accommodation to people who want to visit friends or go to the theater. The service committee announces that there are many deserving girls who will do this well in order to earn their way. Many of these girls are high school, vocational school or county training school students. A little advance notice is necessary, especially during the holiday season.

Service on Rooms. While there is no demand now for rooms for girls, the "Y" suggests that people having rooms to rent to young women should register with the service committee. In this manner a girl will be placed in a comfortable lodging place without delay upon application at the "Y". The service committee will endeavor to procure the best possible rooms for young girls.

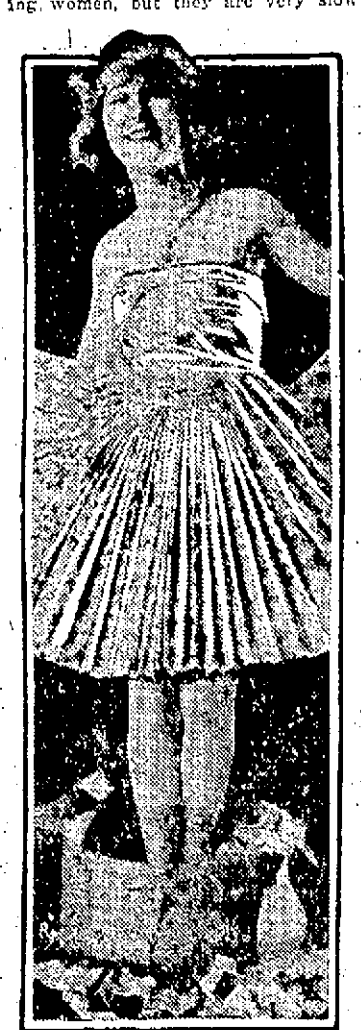

The members of the committee are: Miss Margaret Young, chairwoman; Miss Margaret George Jacobs and Miss O'Brien, and the Misses Emily Moser, Margaret Patterson and Katharine Ketchum.

Limit Navy Discharges to 10 Pct. of Each Ship

Boston.—Discharge of men from the Atlantic fleet will be limited to 10 percent of the number on board each vessel, it was directed Wednesday in orders sent to Rear Admiral Joseph B. Smith, commander-in-chief of the fleet. This order was issued as a modification of the order reducing the enlisted personnel of the navy by about 5,000 men, with authorization of discharges accordingly. It was understood the effect of Admiral Jones' order would be to limit to about 700 men the discharges on the 15 vessels of the fleet, which under the original authorization might have extended to 2,200.

NOT LIABLE FOR TRUSSESS

Madison.—Just because the state sold land belonging to Wisconsin Indians, when as a matter of fact it did not have title to the property, does not make it liable for trusses. R. M. Hight, deputy attorney general, holds in an opinion to the land commission, clearing up questions of long standing. In the same opinion, he says the state is not liable for trusses and is morally bound to pay back principal and interest to the individuals who purchased the land which the state had no right to sell. The legislature provided that full payment should be made to the purchasers.

REFUSE TO CUT MINIMUM

Madison.—The industrial commission refused Thursday to reduce the minimum wage rate for minors, answering a request from a group of labor concerns. They had asked that the minimum of 25 cents an hour be cut, inasmuch as women over 21 years of age often do not receive as large a return for their services.

WOMEN'S PRISON CLOSED.

Carleton, Wis.—In consequence of a decrease in the number of women convicts, the women's prison here is being closed. Recent years have seen a gradual closing down of prisons for women in this country and there are now only 25 out of 100 which were in existence some years ago. Women prisoners decreased from 5,100 in 1911 to 1,200 in October, 1920.

CRAIG TELLS OF ONE CROP PERILS

Diversity of Crops in Southern Wisconsin Means Less Adversity.

Waukesha.—Of the visit of Samson "Tractor" Officials to Waukesha Tuesday, the Daily Freeman says: "Waukesha, through some fifty members of the Association of Commerce today extended a formal welcome and greeting to the Samson 'Tractor' Co. of Janesville. It was a most happy occasion with the hosts and guests feeling in exceptionally jovial mood as evidenced by the verbal pyrotechnics at the Schiltz hotel where the general manager, J. A. Craig, of the Samson company, and about a dozen other officials and department heads, were given a dinner."

Waukesha Fortune. Much valuable information on the trend of the times in the business and industrial world was given out by the men who have their cars mightily close to the ground and therefore spoke with more than ordinary authority. The sum and substance of it was that Waukesha county has every reason to congratulate itself on having dairy cattle and dairy products as principal industry. For it is only in such regions that business is now thriving in these "piping times of peace."

J. A. Craig speaking at the banquet at the Schiltz hotel, said it was "no accident" that the Samson Tractor company selected Waukesha. He then told of twenty years' cordial business relation with "Country" dairymen, or, in his words, declaring that his company and Mr. Martell needed no written contracts to do business with, as Mr. Martell's industry was sufficient to readily adjust any differences at any time as the markets fluctuated. "Waukesha had a good product and a good man behind it."

One-crop States in Peril. Mr. Craig then spoke of the industrial depression and stated that industry in other parts of the nation lay prostrate but that in southern Wisconsin, especially, it was keeping life intact, because Waukesha county and others like it were agricultural or dairy counties. He told of hearing the president of the Farm Bureau at St. Paul state that such regions have been experienced in states where there is a one-crop year. And that the leading states from a farmer prosperity viewpoint were Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. One-crop and year states were facing utter ruin. He told the Waukesha merchants that they do not know what financial stagnation means as did the merchants of communities where they shelves were piled high with high-priced goods and none of it moving.

A. J. Frame speaks. A. J. Frame contributed considerable "common sense" to the discussion. He declared that Waukesha knew the peril of one crop a year up to 1893, when Gov. W. D. Hoar gave the inalienable right to dairy-land and Waukesha county followed the new trend of the dairy cattle and dairy products industry. He said that prosperity had advanced in cycles and that the law of supply and demand will always control economic forces. He said we ought to be thankful that we are as well off as we are and that hard work and efficiency are the only agencies that will carry us forward to ultimate continued prosperity.

Guests from Here. Members of the Samson organization who spent the day in the city visiting the factory of the company in this city were J. A. Craig, R. Bell, E. T. Birmingham, H. A. Craig, C. M. Evans, E. P. Kohler, A. S. Kozl, L. A. Williams, L. A. Martin, J. W. Miller, C. O. Reed, F. L. Smith, C. Whitaker, S. J. Zapinski, W. E. Moody, W. J. Brandt, John Enders and R. E. Hanson.

Cigars Are Still Popular Presents for Christmas

When father gets up on Christmas morning and finds a box of cigars in his stocking or hanging by a pink ribbon on a limb of the overburdened Christmas tree, he smiles skeptically and later tries to give away the cigars to the janitor or the man who tends the ash cans. So runs the humorist romance but it so happens that things like the mother-in-law joke, is worn and faded.

Cigars constitute a regularly standardized Christmas gift. This year just as many cigars will be given as ever. In Janesville cigar manufacturers report a fine sale. Jake Stern, who makes the "Twilight Club" and is proud of the fact that it one of the best cigars ever smoked, says his business has been better than last year even.

Cigar stores also report good trade in all brands. Janesville cigars are popular. The six cigar factories of the city turn out 300,000 cigars annually according to the best figures obtainable. On a basis of 300 working days in a year, this would mean the manufacture of 3,000 cigars a day. If these cigars were placed end to end they would stretch from here to Milwaukee, or over 70 miles.

Due to the lack of help, cigar manufacturing in Janesville and the whole country has had a considerable slump. This is partly due to the fact that cigar makers for the past two years have engaged other trades offering better wages. At present time only 15 men are employed in the industry.

U. S. PUTS SEAL ON DRUGGISTS' LIQUOR

Whiskey Sale Is Banned in 6 of 7 Stores Pending Explanations.

Except for one drug-store Janesville under the law is as dry as a withered bone bleaching on the Arizona desert. The government seals have been placed on the doors of the drug stores in the city of Janesville, with one exception, and those seals prohibit the sale of a drop of any liquor until certain explanations are given to the government prohibition officials.

Whiskey, wine and all other forms of intoxicants are now under bond. A check was made here recently by the prohibition agents and but one druggist checked out correctly and successfully. The agents demanded to know where every pint, even down to the last drop of liquor, was being sold. The druggists were checked as against the amount reported. And the sale of it all is that that several of the druggists did not check short, but over. The seals were slapped on just the same.

Until the druggists can make a satisfactory explanation of this discrepancy they will be denied the right to sell liquor on any "script" or order. As a result of the close checking several of the druggists, not having previous bonds, are hanging up all their wet goods, cancelling their licenses and looking for dry drug stores.

A special meeting of the entire lodge will follow the banquet and a large class of candidates for membership will be initiated. A program of entertainment will be given. BIG THREE ENDS PARLEYS ON NAVAL RATIO PROPOSALS

After acceptance of the "5-5-3" naval ratio, awaiting an adjustment of technical details alone, the focal point of the Jans conference negotiations appeared to be shifting. The Japanese delegation was expected to meet Thursday to the Far Eastern discussions.

No sessions were scheduled Thursday for the Far Eastern committee, which was expected to be subject to the call of Chairman Hughes, after China had requested that the treaties resulting from the famous 21 demands be abrogated and consideration of the question had been properly objected to by the Japanese delegates.

Must Be Disposed of.

How the conference will steer its course on this new subject is the subject of speculation. The Far Eastern negotiations were the subject of deliberation by the other delegations Thursday as they prepared for a decision on what subjects can properly be taken up under the conference agenda. In the view of the Chinese representatives, however, the subject is not to be discussed until the conference now and must be disposed of one way or another. The conference also faced an additional complication in the Far Eastern negotiations Thursday as a result of China's request that it take definite steps to abolish all claims to "special spheres of influence" which have grown out of the several treaties with China.

Agree on Mutual.

Japan's request for retention of the battleship Albatross in substitution for an old ship, which was accepted, placed acceptance of the naval plan, having been definitely agreed to by Great Britain and the United States, with provision for equivalent concessions to these powers, official announcement of the accord was held back Thursday solely by technical details yet to be determined regarding the British equivalent. The British request for the arrangement which in no way departs from the "5-5-3" ratio basis of the Hughes proposal, retains the battleships Colorado and Wisconsin in place of the Delaware and North Dakota. It also has been definitely settled that the naval agreement will embrace a status quo understanding as to naval bases in the Pacific.

Railway Issue Up.

Another difficult question in the Far Eastern negotiations remained unsettled Thursday as the Japanese and Chinese delegates continued their Sighting conference in an effort to agree on a basis for Japanese railroads in the Kiau Chow railway. The controversy now revolves around the question of financial guarantees desired by Japan for withdrawal from the road which some of the Chinese delegates view as amounting to virtual perpetration of Japanese control over the property.

WORKMAN WHO FELL DOWN STAIRS LOSES ACTION FOR WAGES

Hilt, Elie and Nielsen, cement contractors here, emerged winners in a workman's compensation action through a decision made Wednesday by the state industrial commission dismissing the complaint of Edwin Brown, Janesville.

The decision followed a public hearing held by the commission at the city hall here.

Brown asked for compensation as a result of a broken hip and other injuries suffered in a fall downstairs while he claimed to be on the job of the Hilt firm.

The defendants' testimony showed that Brown was hired out to work as a laborer and that while on the job he asked to be let off to buy some tobacco.

He returned to work sometime later in an intoxicated condition. It was alleged, and was told by Mr. Hilt to go home as he was not in fit condition to work. A few minutes later, Brown fell down the stairs in a drug store. The commission held he was not in the employ of the firm at the time.

E. B. Brown represented Brown at the hearing and Charles Fierman appeared for the contracting firm.

ASK PRISON TERMS FOR 'MOON' SELLERS

Officials Here See Need for More Teeth in State "Dry" Law

Revision of the state prohibition law to permit penitentiary sentences for violators is advocated by Judge H. L. Nashfield as a means to make the dry law much more effective in Wisconsin.

The extreme penalty now of a $1,000 fine or six months in the county jail is not enough for most cases in the opinion of the municipal court head.

"The legislature should put teeth in the law by providing sentences of more than three years in the penitentiary and not more than one year in jail," said Judge Nashfield, Thursday.

"Six months under the commitment law is much too light a penalty for many of the cases we have had."

Judge Nashfield's position is endorsed by Chief of Police Charles Newman.

Asked about the ruling of Attorney General Morgan that cities may pass ordinances to regulate prohibition, the judge expressed their belief that such an ordinance would do little to strengthen the present regulations. Under a city ordinance, they point out, nothing more than a fine or light jail sentence would be possible.

What they would like to see is a state law which would send bootleggers and moonshine makers to Vaupien.

be secret, as were the two final sittings Wednesday after the differences between John De Valera and his group of dissenters on the one hand, and the treaty advocates—including Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins—on the other, had become so marked that the decision was taken to call all newspaper correspondents.

The clash during the public session hinged on the point whether Griffith and the other Irish plenipotentiaries had exceeded their powers in signing the treaty instead of referring it to the Dail. The plenipotentiaries contended their powers were plainly set forth in their credentials, but to the Irish dissenters the question was whether the credentials had been accepted by the British government.

At the Theatres

MYKIN.

The picturization of Sir James Barrie's famous story, "Sentimental Tommy," directed by John S. Robertson, is now being shown at the Myers theater, having opened a two-day engagement, Wednesday night.

The scenes of the story are laid in Thomas, an old Scotch village, which is well reproduced on the screen. The story is of the boy-author, Tommy Sanders, "Sentimental Tommy," and his love affairs with Grizel and Lady Alice Pippinworth. Grizel has a bad reputation given to her by her mother, to live down, and Tommy, in his sympathizing way, offers to marry her to make her happy. Realizing that he does not love her, she refuses.

Tommy then becomes engaged in an affair with Lady Alice, but he finds that she is not what he thought she was. The picture was preceded by the prologue act of Piers and McElroy, in which there is some good dancing.

THE FOUR POWER TREATY

It is hard to understand opposition to the treaty concluded between the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan. The United States, through Secretary Hughes last summer informally communicated to Great Britain that the Anglo-Japanese alliance was disagreeable to this country. The treaty was supported in that position by the governments of Canada and Australia. It may be remembered that this alliance between Britain and Japan acted to the detriment of China, was powerful in the conflict with Russia and was used as a potent force against Germany. With the destruction of Russia as a force for conquest and the overthrow of the German militarist, the excuse for the existence of this treaty was no longer tenable. In the arms conference Senator Lodge has consistently held that before an American ship could be scrapped this Anglo-Jap alliance should be written off the books.

There are four nations concerned with the Pacific islands—those archipelagos which have been in whole or part picked up and taken over by civilization for the last century or more. The United States was never deeply interested in the South Sea until the Hawaiian revolution and later the acquisition of those islands as a part of our territory. Three years later we started a chain of widened relationship by the seeming need to take over the Philippines. Before that, when France, Britain or Germany had acquired an island or so we paid no attention. When Japan received the German islands, narrowing the control of the Pacific to the four signatories to the present treaty in question, it aroused no large comment except in connection with Tap and its cable station.

So we went at the Far East question with the determination to remove the Anglo-Jap treaty and to make future wars over the coral islands and agreements can write conflict out of national lives. In doing so the treaty gives up nothing that belonged to the United States. It guarantees to no nation anything not now possessed by it. The islands could not have been taken by any other outside nations except through war, successful revolution or sale. The Dutch in the Celebes, Borneo and Java are guaranteed in their possession so far as outside influence is concerned but there is nothing in the treaty that would prevent a transfer of those possessions to another nation.

Greatest of all is the fact that the treaty ends the greatest menace of war, ends the Tap controversy with the Americans in possession of the cable station, and all the demagogues who hate Britain or denounce France or prefer the United States should go to war with Japan, cannot change the situation. And with the next step for the conference, a settlement of the Chinese questions, there will come another guarantee of world peace.

We begin to wonder if Bill Hayward is getting three squares a day.

DELAY IN STATE PRINTING

Great delay has been experienced in the delivery of the printed matter of the state. The Daily Cardinal, the newspaper of the University, complains that the directories of students have been so delayed as to be useless for the first semester. The Cardinal calls attention to the state printing having been let to a firm in Des Moines, Iowa. "The experience of this year should be remembered when the next contract is let," says the Cardinal. But will it be? There was a small saving on the bids when the contract was let to Iowa for printing Wisconsin state documents. Supposing that to feed the dependent people of Wisconsin, Iowa had been given the contract to the detriment of the farmers of this state? It is rather a safe feeling that even though the price here was a little higher, Wisconsin would have had the contract. It might have been better had the state adopted the same ruling to the printing contract. "A saving in cost of publication," says the Cardinal, "may be more than offset by delay and inconvenience resulting from an unwise contract."

Whenever a man is arrested in Green county he tries to have the sheriff removed. Just one removal suit after another but in spite of so many suits there is, fortunately, no change.

Those Kansas women who are helping the strikers seem to take woman's equality seriously.

LAWS ABOUT WOMEN

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—The searchlight is being turned, perhaps more thoroughly than ever before, on the laws which affect women. The national woman's party is going systematically from state to state making surveys of these laws. Then, when legislatures inquire innocently in what way women are bound unfairly by their statutes, the feminists are ready with a report showing conclusively the state's legal attitude toward women.

Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama are the four states which so far have been studied. These states were taken first because the state legislatures were to meet there. Now, the woman's party workers are going on to collect evidence on nine more states where the legislatures convene early in the coming year.

This is a part of the campaign to get each state to pass a blanket bill removing all legal disabilities of women. Wisconsin is, so far, the only state to adopt such a measure.

Last spring, in a nine weeks' campaign, Wisconsin put through a bill which gave the women of the state the same rights and privileges before the law as the men hold. The bill instructed the courts to take the words he, his, him, and similar words indicating the masculine gender in the state laws to include the feminine equivalents. One exception to this was provided: the laws are not to be so read where the construction would "deny to females the special protection and privileges which they now enjoy for the general welfare." This refers, in part, to the laws protecting women in industry.

Wisconsin made this sweeping change without much ado. But when the proposal came to the four southern legislatures that met a little later, it was given a chilling reception.

Louisiana, it is true, did take action to the extent of repealing nine specific discriminations against women. As one result all political and civil offices in the state are now open to women. Another reform achieved by Louisiana compels a husband to obtain consent of his wife, before he can sell or mortgage the home. The rest of the family property remaining under control of the husband as he has it. But the wife is assured that the roof over her head will not be sold without any reference to her wishes or interests.

Louisiana agreed to nine changes, but the radical idea of absolute legal equality for women was turned down flatly. The other three state legislatures to which the measure was submitted also rejected it. And yet the feminists point out, these states, progressive in many ways, are far behind some other states in their legal treatment of women.

The surveys of the state laws showed many cases where the old common law holds. For instance, a wife in Mississippi was refused the right to sue for damages for the alienation of her husband's affections. The laws of the state give the husband control of the wife's personal property, and the courts held that in these circumstances the wife won the suit, the erring husband would benefit by it as he could appropriate the money. In this state, which is not the most backward of the 48, a woman practically loses herself out to her husband for life. In return for her services she receives her board and a wage. But she cannot require her husband to pay her anything. She has no right to any part of the family income and she has no interest in her husband's property unless he dies and leaves it.

Thus, when a woman was injured by fall on an exposed gas pipe, the wife received damages for her personal injury, but the husband was allowed by the court to collect the amount awarded as the loss of her services in the home.

According to the report from Florida, the women of that state are under the domination of the old English common law to a greater extent than perhaps any other state in the union. According to the common law a married woman "could make no contract of any kind." This, the report shows, is true in Florida today with a few exceptions. Unless her husband has been pronounced insane, had been insane for a year, a married woman may not rent, mortgage, or sell even, property given or willed to her without his consent. If the husband is a criminal he still has this control over his wife's property.

A husband in this state may do as he likes with the proceeds from his wife's separate property and she may not sue him even to secure an accounting of what he has done with her own money. The report points out that a court decision extended the husband's authority even to ownership of his wife's clothes. And in another case a court ruled that a married woman did not have the right to hire domestic servants.

In this day when so many married women prefer work in an office or shop to work in a kitchen, it is interesting to note that in Alabama the husband generally has authority, backed up by law, to say whether or not his wife may work outside the home. To quote a court decision the husband is entitled to his wife's services to the extent that she is still in this respect "merely a servant." So a court in 1914 decided that if the outside work would interfere with her domestic duties a husband could legally prevent his wife from entering paid employment.

So many women have business experience before marriage that the home standards have been advanced more rapidly than the laws. The modern woman knows the unit of labor which earned a dollar in the store or office and she compares that with her work about the house. She figures that she is putting her share into a business partnership and whatever is saved or acquired is part hers.

There are several theories with which the modern domestic establishment is experimenting. One is to make the home a partnership and to have everything about the home held jointly. Another idea is for each of the contracting parties to hold his or her own share separately. In this plan the wife might have a fixed salary for housework besides money set aside for her to pay certain of the bills. What she can save out of her salary and expenses she puts away or spends to suit herself and the husband does likewise with his share of the budget.

By some such scheme the home of the business woman is apt to be run after marriage. But in many states it is only a courtesy arrangement by which the husband does not demand his legal rights. And in event of a disagreement or divorce the wife finds that she has very little that her husband cannot control or in some states even disposes of. So, the feminine lawyers contend that the modern wife's scientific menage is built on shifting sand.

It is difficult to get a good many of the states to make sweeping changes in the old fashioned, discriminating laws. Women campaigners have found, Miss Maud Younger, legislative chairman of the woman's party has said, "In some states, like Louisiana and Alabama which have taken adverse action, it has already shown to be practically impossible to secure state laws. Further, state laws are never permanent. The next state legislature may repeal the measures passed by its predecessor."

Because of these facts, the woman's party is also working to have a constitutional amendment adopted giving women of the country legal equality with men. This amendment is still in process of evolution. The party wants it to be worded so that it is foolproof and so that it completely covers the case. Lawyers are now working on the amendment so that it can be introduced before congress shortly.

The state bills and the amendment are intended to make secure women's rights in such matters as ownership and control of earnings, office holding, jury service, control of children, choice of domicile and name. The law of Louisiana provides that a wife must live where her husband deems even if he supports him. It is interesting to note that in the states where surveys have been made, no statute provides that a woman must take the name of her husband. Here a "right" of which women might have availed themselves for generations perhaps, yet few have done so. Those who went to law for their rights, have, it seems, been concerned with more vital affairs.

READY FOR PROMOTION

There's going to be a vacancy above you later on. Some day you'll find the foreman or the superintendent gone. And are you growing big enough, when this shall be the case. To quit the post you're holding now and step into his place?

You do the work you have to do with ease from day to day. But are you getting ready to deserve the larger pay? If there should come a vacancy with bigger tasks to do. Could you step in and fill the place if it were offered you?

Tomorrow's not so far away, nor is the goal you seek. Today you should be training for the work you'll do next week. The bigger job is just ahead, each day new changes bring it nearer.

Suppose that post were vacant now, could you take charge of things? It's not enough to know enough to hold your place today. It's not enough to do enough to earn your weekly pay. Some day there'll be a vacancy with greater tasks to do. Will you be ready for the place when it shall fall to you?

A family gave up its apartment on account of the servant problem and moved into a hotel. On Monday there were no blankets. On Tuesday the maid soiled the bathtub with a 40-cent cake of toilet soap. On Wednesday there were no lights. On Thursday there was no hot water. On Friday there was no cold water. On Saturday there was no heat. On Sunday there was no tenant.

Who's Who Today

LORD BIRKENHEAD.

Baron Birkenhead, the lord high chancellor of Great Britain and a Unionist leader, who was largely instrumental in framing the Irish agreement, came to the United States in December, 1917. He told the United States what Great Britain was doing in the war and what it was hoped America would contribute. He was then Sir Frederick Edwin Smith, solicitor general of England. His sudden recall to England after barely a month in the United States was attributed to his reflections made in public speeches on the league of nations plan of President Wilson and on the Irish Nationalists. The baronetcy was created in 1919, and he was made chancellor in the same year.

Lord Birkenhead is still comparatively young for a man of his prominence. He was born July 12, 1872, the son of a barrister who had once been a private soldier. He distinguished himself in the Boer war and won several honors. He has become an authority on international law and statesman. During the first year of the war he was Britain's ambassador to the United States. He was also secretary of the British Empire League and directed the prosecution of Sir Roger Casement.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

"Crowded Japan." Japan is less crowded than are Holland, Belgium, and England. The average European country normally raises a smaller percentage of their food supplies than the 80 per cent and more that the Japanese now raise for their home consumption. England in fact raises much less than 40 percent of the food her people consume. Japan has over 700 inhabitants per square mile, thus showing that Japan could support far more than her present 37.5 inhabitants per square mile—if the Japanese would turn from much of their food to peaceful occupations. And this is further emphasized by the fact that but one fourth of the Japanese are industrial workers, whereas one fourth of the inhabitants of England are industrialists. In other words, given equal resources, industrial facilities, and markets, ten times as many Japanese as now do so could support themselves by industry in Japan.—William H. Gardner in the World's Work for December.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Dec. 15, 1881.—The council met last night and carried on little but routine business. Dr. J. O. Substant received from the Board of Health and was replaced by Dr. J. B. Whiting. Dr. E. E. Loomis of the Board, stated that some action should be taken to get a pest house here. Resolutions from the two hook and ladder companies were received.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Dec. 15, 1891.—Recesses in all but the primary grades have been abolished. The plan (taking effect about two weeks ago), the many who objected to the plan have stopped their objections on seeing how well it works out.—It 100 more shares are received for the street railway, the Chicago company will start laying the tracks at once.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Dec. 15, 1901.—Marconi has established wireless connections across the Atlantic and yesterday at Newfoundland, received the signal sent from England. A kite with wings attached caught the message but it was hoped to put the 200-foot mast soon and use it all the time, believing in time, it will take the place of cables.

TEN YEARS AGO

Dec. 15, 1911.—Schools of the city closed today for a two week vacation. Prodding was given in almost every grade this afternoon. A rumor in London that King George had been assassinated in India caused a great deal of excitement in that city this morning, but it was soon found to be false.

CONDITIONS OF FORGIVENESS

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

HARSH AND CLAMMY

The cold, dry, sensitive, irritable skin tells a more detailed story to the well read and well trained physician than could be narrated here. I am going to be more careful than ever now about letting any symptoms slip into my part of this column, and such contributions as I select from the lot down with the fine tooth comb before publication. Symptoms, without a personal examination by a physician, are very unreliable.

The harsh, clammy skin happens to folks of all ages, but chiefly to the old—meaning no affront to years. In fact not referring to years at all, but using the term only in the physical sense. Some of us retain ability before we are old enough to vote.

Overbathing is a frequent cause of harsh, dry, rough, scaly, sensitive skin and low resistance to cold. Overbathing is such old stuff now that even the patent medicine circulars warn against it—if they are not booming something to improve the appetite. Overbathing is an evil habit which we have dwelt fatiguingly in and out of seasons and it tends to dry out and spoil the skin and complexion, too. But overbathing is a comparatively novel idea, and I stand right up in the middle of it. I am going to say that once a week is as often as any really clean person need wash his body with soap and water in the winter time, and for persons beyond middle age, and for those who are not used to bathing with soap and water for cleanliness through the eight or nine cold months of the year. Easy, there. Don't run away with the idea that I am saying that every really clean person should have an air bath once a day, and I can conceive no reason why anybody clean or dirty, should wash with soap and water once or twice a day those surfaces of the body which by reason of close apposition and our mode of dress do not have the cleansing effect of exposure to the air. And for health's sake one can scarcely wash the hands too frequently with soap and water.

As for the face, young ones may sometimes actually improve their complexion by daily soap and water face washing, but past the flapper stage the less soap and the less water on the face the better for a woman's complexion, every time. Some harshly made cold cream—Unguentum Aquae Rosae, a mixture of rose water, made to order by the pharmacist according to the U. S. or British Pharmacopoeia—may be used for washing dirt from the face, in lieu of soap and water. Indeed, persons afflicted with a harsh, rough, sensitive, clammy skin will find the use of some such oil bath beneficial for the skin of the whole body. A few drops of oil of sesame or of sweet almond oil, if good fragrances are available, may be applied to the skin every day with benefit in many ways.

SYNOPSIS
Thrown out of a job in his father's livery stable because of failure, George Morton becomes a horse-wrangler for Old Planters, rich and arrogant. The youth falls in love with Sylvia Platter, and when she falls from her horse, he kisses her. This brings on a fight. Morton leaves, goes to Princeton and determines on a college education. He makes the football team, studies with intense devotion and the aid of a tutor, George Daily.

If you can find out what he's up to without committing yourself, you can put it down that he isn't after you for nothing.

"But why?" George demanded. "Bailly shrugged his narrow shoulders.

"Anyhow, I've told you what I could, and you'll go your own way whether you agree or not." George did as a matter of fact. His curiosity earned him a number of times to Wadsworth's rooms. Practically always Dalmatius sat aloof, sullenly slipping whiskey which had no business there. He met a number of other men in a friendly enough fashion; and once or twice the suave little fellow made a point of asking him for a particular day or hour. Always Wadsworth invited him to see a new man, offering him, George felt, as a specimen to be accepted as a triumph of the Wadsworth judgment. And in every fresh face George saw the question he continually asked himself.

Wadsworth's campaign accomplished one result: Men like Rogers became more obsequious, considering George already a unit of that allowed circle. But George wasn't fooled. He knew very well that he wasn't.

Goodhue, however, was more friendly. Football, after all, George felt, was quite as responsible for that as Roger's attitude. And it was the combination of Goodhue at quarter and George at half that accounted for the team's work against the "varsity," and that beat the Yale and the Harvard teams. Such a consistent and effective partnership couldn't help drawing its members closer out of admiration, out of joy in success, out of a wonderful dependence that each learned to place upon the other. That conception survived the Freshman season. George no longer felt he had to be careful with Goodhue. Goodhue had found his lodgings.

"Not palatial," George explained, "because you may not know it—I am working my way through college. Goodhue's voice was a trifle envious.

"I know. I must give you a fine feeling to do that."

Then Betty's vague invitation materialized in a note which mentioned a date and the fact that Goodhue would be there. Goodhue himself suggested that George should call on him that evening so they could drive out together. George had never been before, had not suspected that Dalmatius lived with Goodhue. The fact, learned at the door, which bore two cards, disquieted him, filled him with a sense nearly premonitory.

When he had entered in response to Goodhue's call his doubts increased. The room seemed inimical to him, yet it was a normal enough place. What did it harbour that he was afraid of that he was, reluctant even to look for Goodhue was nearly ready. Dalmatius lounged on a window seat. He glanced at George languidly.

"Will say, Morton, you did more than your share against those Crimson Freshmen Saturday." George nodded without answering. He had found the object of the room, the picture of Sylvia Platter, framed replica of the portrait, he himself possessed of Sylvia Platter. Its presence there impressed him as a wrong, for to study and commune with that pictured face he had fanned his own privilege. Nor did it do his eyes to look at it. He knew of Sylvia Platter as a woman, wasn't the type to scatter her likeliness among young men. George had an instinct to turn on Dalmatius and demand a history of the portrait, since Goodhue, he was certain, wouldn't have placed it there without authority. After all, such authority would come from Dalmatius, the friend of Sylvia, guide from her beauty, her arrogance, and her breeding? That was it. Her breeding made the exposure of her portrait here questionable.

"What you staring at?" Dalmatius asked, sullenly.

"Is this your desk?" George demanded.

"Yes. Why?" George faced him abruptly.

"I was looking at that photograph." "What for?" Dalmatius demanded, sitting up.

"Because," George answered, evenly, "it appears to be where one sees it."

Dalmatius flushed.

"Dashed pretty girl," he said with an affection of indifference. "Of course you don't know her."

"I have seen her," George said, shortly.

He felt that a challenge had been passed and accepted. He raised his voice.

"How about it, Goodhue?" "Coming."

Dalmatius opened his mouth as if to speak, but the object slipped into the room, and George and he went down the stairs and climbed into Goodhue's runabout.

"I didn't know," George said when they started, "that you lived with Dalmatius."

"We were put together at school, so it seemed simple to start out here."

George was glad to fancy a slight colour of apology, as if such a companionship needed a reason.

CHAPTER C.

A LONG TALK
So once again I saw Winthrop in my dream. And once again I was left speechless. It was Win who spoke first.

"How did you get here?" The simple question gave me my own answer for an answer. I found my voice without any trouble. For an instant it had seemed to stick in my throat.

"I drove down."

"Oh, so that's your car. It's—it's a new one, isn't it?"

Plainly, Winthrop was as much at a loss as I was. And this hesitation on part promptly raised my own voice. "I was master of the situation from then on."

"Yes, new last fall. Your mother thought I was coming by train. Had you come to meet me?"

He nodded. He was in the hall now, standing near, looking down at me. Unconsciously I moved away.

"Sorry I hadn't wired I was driving."

He moved a step nearer.

"Are you glad to see me? I've been here for a week—took a month off from the office to see you. Mother showed me your wire. I thought you might like to see me."

I turned with relief to pick up Connie, who appeared and saved the need of an answer. She was beamed and freshly dressed, and was coming down stairs one step at a time, holding the rails, and looking shyly at the new man who stood between her and the door into the garden.

"If you don't want me around, I'll go away," Win went on.

This new note, this meekness and submission and wishfulness, quite disarmed me. Winthrop had fooled me. I had been holding against him began to melt like snow before the sun. But I was quite wise enough not to give in too easily.

"Of course, I'm glad to see you," I answered lightly. "Connie, will you shake hands with this gentleman and call him Uncle Win?"

The child gave him a long look from her serious blue eyes. She had a trick of drooping her head and looking up. Her eyes, veiled with extraordinarily long, silky lashes, made her more bewitching when she did it. Win felt her charm at once and held out his arms for her. But she clung to me.

I dressed for dinner that evening, or supper, as Mother Taylor called it. I selected a slim, fancy frock that I knew Win would like, but that was not too out of place in the simple house. After dinner, Win said he wanted to talk to me.

And knowing the prying curiosity of everyone in Westville, and the tongues that would wag over this new situation, I threw a dark coat on over my dress, and we drove slowly through the town in my car. I turned past the little house we had when we were first married, wondering whether Win would remember it, and out the road that led to the top of the highest hill near the town.

My heart was fairly pounding. It beat so hard that this was the old days. Had the quiet atmosphere of the town he was brought up in changed him back again to the love-ble man I once knew? Was it the city that changed him to the man I found impossible to live with?

"Stop a moment," where the road topped the hill.

"Do you remember when we drove here once before?" Winthrop asked.

Then I knew the change was complete. Indeed, I remembered the drive and the setting sun, and the town in the valley that was bathed in the twilight, and shadow, while we, on the hill, sat in the sunlight.

"We were in the first days of our love."

The country was silver and black in the moonlight now, shadowy, illusive, mystic as all things seem when the moon is on them.

"I remember," I answered.

"Win was looking at me, and I held tight to the wheel to keep my hands steady."

"I wanted to tell you—that I've been wrong all along," Win began, hesitating but full of earnestness. "I wanted to tell you that evening when you came to my place—to our place."

I mean. It was just some funny stubbornness in me that made me quarrel. I burnt up all those silly pictures after you left."

Weeks, months, had passed since then.

"Why didn't you come to me or write me or phone?"

"I tried to, but I was afraid. I thought you might cut me—you would have been quite right, but I was afraid of being cut. And I thought I did want my old freedom and that you would take it away from me—that you would tie me up."

But I don't think I like being free!" he added, with a sudden return of his old-time boyish manner.

"I like being free," I answered.

Win stared at me. I started the engine and began backing in the road, to head the car homeward.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Discouraged—A double chin usually happens when the person has grown too stout, but in which case a general reduction will eliminate it. You may also help it by massaging the chin. This is done with the palm of the hand, with a motion somewhat like fanning out the fan, by making deep strokes from the lower part of the throat, stroking the flesh from this point upward and outward to the end of the chin. As the fat is consumed, harden the skin by using an astringent over all the face and throat two or three times each week.

Russell—In walking with ladies a gentleman always takes the side toward the street, or road, his case may be in entering any public place, she precedes him. It is a matter of preference whether you say "excuse me" or "pardon me."

Blue Belts—If your hair is not naturally curly, it will always be affected by dampness, unless you have a permanent wave.

Thirti—Those brown spots on your face come from a sluggish liver and imperfect elimination. You can bleach them but they will return, unless you correct the cause of them.

M. C.—Any stain or dye that you use on the lashes will have to be renewed as the new hair grows out from the roots. It is a delicate piece of work which should be done at first by a beauty specialist, after which it is a matter of keeping up by touching the roots of the hair with the coloring, using the point of a fine sable brush. An extract from walnut juice makes a harmless stain for this purpose.

Henna—To color the grey hairs you should let the hair and scalp interpenetrate for about 20 minutes, and proceed as you would with any other method of shampooing. If you need other information about it, send a stamped addressed envelope and I will be glad to mail it to you.

Fatty—A girl of 15 years five feet tall should weigh about 110 pounds.

W. B. K.—The henna you are using is a trade preparation, which has a dye added to it. If you do not obtain an even shade after following the directions given, write to the manufacturers who put it up. They probably will be glad to help you.

And K.—Wearing the hair in curls for 20 hours out of the 24 is an injustice to the people who must come in contact with you during all those hours of the day. You owe it to them, if not to yourself, to look neat. If this is the only way you can have your hair curl for the few hours that re-

Walworth County Poultry Being Ruined by Infection of Tuberculosis.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Johnson—County Agent Merriam has found several flocks in the county badly infected with tuberculosis. "Tubercular hens do not lay, even though they do eat," said Mr. Merriam recently, "and besides they are dangerous because they spread the germ. Soon the whole flock takes the disease and the whole place becomes infected with the germ, thus making it much harder to get rid of the disease and start a healthy flock."

"The first symptom of tuberculosis is the loss of weight; next the brood becomes very sharp and prominent; then the hen shows lameness. This lameness is often mistaken for rheumatism and a leg showing lameness should be examined. The joints sometimes show swelling."

"Upon opening one of the sick hens, the internal organs will show whitish and yellow lesions which have a gritty appearance and feeling when they are scraped with a knife. The liver and spleen especially are often affected in poultry tuberculosis. These organs are often greatly enlarged."

Cannot Be Cured

"There is no cure for tuberculosis and an infected flock is one difficult to handle because the disease is slow in development and runs in a chronic or long drawn out course. If it gets a foothold in a flock, about the only thing to do is to get rid of all the birds in the flock in the fall, thoroughly clean up all poultry quarters, and disinfect, and do not try to keep any poultry for at least six months, or over winter."

"Where only a few hens have the disease it sometimes works to get rid of all old hens and thoroughly clean up and disinfect all places where they have been, and keep the healthy pullets in new quarters. It is necessary to have the hen house properly ventilated and furnish a great deal of light, as sunlight is the best germ killer."

Give Help

"The county agent will gladly help identify tuberculosis in the flock and suggest methods of treatment. In some sections over 25 per cent of the poultry is infected with tuberculosis and we do not want such a condition in Walworth county," concluded Mr. Merriam.

RED MAN DESIRES

HEAP MUCH SPEED

Washington.—The automobile "seems to possess the same irresistible fascination for the Indian that it does for many of his white brethren," says the annual report of the board of Indian commissioners. Agents in all parts of the Indian country, the report said, have stated that in many cases the first proceeds of the sale of tribal lands go "to purchase a high powered automobile and a full complement of accessories."

SCHOOL SALE

A sale of Christmas gifts made by the children of the Grant school will be held at the school building Thursday night. Motion pictures will be shown and refreshments will be sold. The money raised will be used to pay off the indebtedness on the phonograph which the school purchased.

Badger Prison Discipline Is Check on Riots

Madison.—Rigid discipline, strictly and constantly enforced, has prevented outbreaks in the Wisconsin state prison such as have occurred in a number of states recently. Henry Town, member of the state board of control and for 18 years warden of the Waupun penitentiary, declares. It has been six years since a prisoner escaped from the institution.

Mr. Town believes there is something too much sentiment connected with prison management. His policy has been to outline a code of conduct for the worst of the inmates, and then make all conform, a plan which, although rigid, works little real hardship, he says.

"This state has hundreds of criminals, including 100 life termers, in its penitentiary, as bad as any in the United States, and yet they have caused little trouble," Mr. Town said. "The reason is that Wisconsin maintains the best discipline of any state in its state prison, both among guards and prisoners, and discipline is as essential for one as for the other."

"The outbreaks that are occurring throughout the country are the most serious in the history of prison management. They are carried out on a scale and with a recklessness never before attempted, and show more than ever the necessity for most scrupulous regulation of prisoners to the most minute detail."

"Our prison has maintained its discipline at all times, so the occurrences in other states have not resulted in any new precautions."

There are 900 men in the Wisconsin state penitentiary at Waupun. Out of this number, 87 are serving life sentences for murder, and an equal number are serving terms ranging from twenty-five to thirty years. They represent as dangerous a type of criminal, he says, as there is in the country.

AVOID DELAYS BY

MAILING THIS WEEK

Everybody wants his Christmas presents delivered by Christmas day, says Postmaster Cunningham.

"So remember, friends, MAIL EARLY."

MAIL EARLY, AND MAIL OFTEN.

And delays you need not fear."

But safety is as important as promptness. You are urged by the postoffice department to "wrap well and tie securely." Do this and mail your parcels this week so far as possible.

"Postoffice folks are now working day and night to get out your Christmas presents—help them by mailing early," Mr. Cunningham said.

London.—What has been one of the best deer-stalking seasons on record in Scotland has been concluded. It is estimated that 6,000 stags have been shot in the north of the Grants during the past two months. Among the monarchs of the Glen were 16 stags each weighing over 250 pounds each.

URGE STOCK LIST FOR COUNTY SALES

Census of All Stock to Be Compiled for Aiding "Co-op" Plans.

A full and comprehensive list of all stock in Rock county is to be sought for an accurate census with attention to what stock is offered for sale by the farmers. This census is to be one of the first and most important steps in the further establishing of Rock county as a livestock center.

Lack of an accurate list of stock for sale is deplored by officers of the breed associations as being one of the chief drawbacks in cooperative selling. A list is desired of all cattle, horses, and then notations, what each farmer has for sale or will have to offer on the market.

Need of Stock Census

"We should have that stock list complete, states Dr. Wayne Munn, president of the Guernsey association. 'I have an order on my desk and except, whether I may know of a few breeders having surplus stock, I or no other man knows where the buyers can look for the stock desired in the order.'"

The Holstein breeders will urge the listing of stock during their county meeting in Janesville next Tuesday.

Buyers are coming to Wisconsin for cattle and we should be in a position to get our share of the business, for we have the stock," reports the Holstein committee.

Would Aid Sales.

Rock county leads Wisconsin in Duroc-Jersey hogs and could increase sales of the red swine through a market list. It is proposed to take in all types and breeds of stock and compile information that will assist in county sales.

Jefferson county cattle have been shipped in carload lots to Mexico, more than 2,500 head having been consigned at good prices. It is pointed out that when buyers come, the agents representing the breeders desire to know exactly where they can find the cattle and be able to have the owner have the stock in condition to show for quick and effective sales.

Irish, Eng.—In an effort to recover relics and bullion from a Spanish galleon which lies in Robermory Bay, syndicate has been formed. Investigations made by an expert diver during the last few weeks are reported to have been very satisfactory.

FOREIGN FAMILIES SEEK WOODED LAND, HARD WORK APLENTY

Madison.—Hard work is looked for by prospective settlers on the out- over lands of northern Wisconsin, if judging by a letter just received by the state bureau of immigration from Jerry Demerski, 100 Salama, Poland, and John Gacki, who are looking for farm homes.

These men want to buy land "not all cleared, so there will be lots of wood cleaning the land." The letter which the bureau says is characteristic of many received from inquirers follows:

"We, a company of four families, all foreigners, but preferring this country rather than our own, have decided to stay here for good, but as we were born and raised on a farm in the old country, we are always longing for the farms and had lately decided to leave the city and reside on a farm somewhere in Wisconsin state."

"We wish to buy land rather far from cities and in great quantity, that is as much as we will be able to handle. The land should not all be cleared, and on the other hand we will be able to buy more land, paying less per acre."

"The land we want should be adjoining to railroad, that we would be able to send away our farm produce. We would like also to have our land laid close to some nice lake or river, but where no flooding has occurred."

February Promotions to Boost Enrollment to $40, Bassford Estimates.

An alarming increase in the high school enrollment will be made at the opening of the February term, according to figures compiled by Principal George Bassford, who is already making plans for accommodations. According to him their will be 100 new students coming into the high school building and only 25 being graduated in the February class. This will bring the enrollment up to $4, a new high mark. In five years the enrollment of the school has doubled.

By next September the enrollment will reach 500, it is expected.

The high school can accommodate them, states Mr. Bassford. In case of emergency, additional classes may be started during the noon hour, giving 11 periods instead of 10 as at present. Several classes are now run under this arrangement.

Between periods, the janitor is kept, and except for the traffic system, progress in the corridors from one class room to others would be almost impossible. More stringent regulations to further alleviate the situation in the halls will be made before the opening of the second school semester. Each semester has seen larger enrollment in the high school, and although now taxed almost to capacity, there is a possibility that the high school will be taught in the old building for another year.

INCREASE HAY CROP

TO FEED LIVESTOCK

Forage crops are on the increase in Wisconsin, with hay having jumped to 5,043,700 tons in 1920, as compared to 4,422,385 tons in 1919, according to a report of the department of commerce. Sales of hay have decreased, however, for in 1919 only 312,596 tons were offered on the market, showing the growing tendency of Wisconsin farmers to feed their produce to livestock.

Coogan Rushes Wallace All Over Ring; Otto Holds Back

GREAT CARD OPENS FISTIC YEAR HERE UNDER ELKS CLUB

GAZETTE DECISIONS
 Windup—Mel Coogan, Jr., of the "City of Churches" administered a severe drubbing to Otto Wallace, Milwaukee (10).
 Semi-windup—Al Dato, Kansas City, beat Jack Zeller, Milwaukee, to a draw (8).
 Second preliminary—Leo Trainer, Madison, outpointed Jerry Nelson, Milwaukee (6).
 Openers—Joe Cahill, Delavan, shaded Leo Murray, Rockford (6).

Stock as a cat, supple as a panther, Mel Coogan of the "City of Churches" administered a severe drubbing to Otto Wallace, Milwaukee, in the final of the first card of the season of the Janesville (Elks) Athletic club Wednesday night.

Before a crowd officially announced as 812, four of the prettiest lights ever staged in the state were pulled off in great shape. The Janesville crowd satiated and breathed in unison with the statement of Referee Joe Steinmeyer that they were the finest set of scraps he has seen in five years. Their interest with "Top" in all his experience in the "cream city," he has never seen a man to equal Wednesday night in the matter of calmly matched men and money of action.

While the attendance was below expectations, the show was such a good starter that a packed house should greet the next encounter. It was announced Wednesday that the Elks club plans to give the same type of entertainment at every future performance. The house drew $1,348.

Coogan Works Hardly
 Setting a terrific pace with the opening bell, Coogan rattled a rapid succession of lefts and rights at Wallace's ribs, chest, jaw, chin and head. He took every round by a wide margin, although Wallace showed improvement in the last two when the contest was in the hands of Referee Steinmeyer to see into it.

In the initial stanza, Coogan landed a right jab to Otto's jaw catching him off balance and setting him on the cushions of his pins. Mel did not even try to tell off his opponent, but sailed right in, in the second round, he increased the pace, and in the third, he began to cover his face, a habit he continued for the balance of the fight.

Basically the best battle that ever appeared in Janesville, Coogan let loose at full capacity even as early as the third round. In the fourth, he was hitting two times to Wallace's one.

His cleverness held off any feeble attempt of the Cream city lad to land telling punches. His blocking was excellent and clever in the sixth, he ducked Otto three times with right and left crosses to the side of the face. In the seventh, he trapped Wallace several times, pulling him on to meet a rain of blows. This was the greatest round of the battle.

Playing for a knockout in the final three innings, Mel seemed to slow up, but it was merely a trick. In the tenth, he sent Wallace staggering under a vicious right to the jaw.

Wallace held back. It was common belief that Wallace was not doing his best. He admitted in his dressing room after the battle that he held himself in to save himself for a scrap with Delavan at Madison next Wednesday. This information was given by Referee Steinmeyer.

While the semi-windup was full of action, Jack Zeller's work was a disappointment. He was who he was in his work here last spring. That is not to say, however, that it was not a good scrap. For the first three rounds, Al Dato had the shadow of a boxing man in too much clinging that slowed the contest. Then Zeller warmed up and commenced to show more of his usual stuff. He drew blood in the fourth. In the fifth, he opened a cut over Delavan's left eye with a series of left jabs. In the sixth, he bruised the Kansas city lad's upper lip. With a gory map and breathing hard, Dato came back so readily in the last two rounds after taking the punishment and worked so well that the decision was a draw.

Delavan Boy Wins
 Youth won over Leo in the second preliminary. Fighting his sixth scrap of his experience, Leo Trainer of Madison outpointed Jerry Nelson of Milwaukee. Nelson, by the way, appeared here at the risk 10 years ago. Trainer was a mighty clever kid, showing class qualities. He has a good future before him and lights with lots of pep.
 Joe Cahill of Delavan, in his initial appearance in the professional ring, shaded Leo Murray of Rockford. The fight was good for a certain reason with the crowd strongly favoring the Delavan boy.

New York—Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, announced that the present lightweight champion would never again fight for Tex Rickard.

BASEBALL TIPS

Los Angeles—The demand of Arnold Stutz for a major league salary as well as the pressure brought to bear by the Cubs caused the sale of the center fielder of the Los Angeles team to the Chicago National League club. Arnold was the sensation of the Coast League. He hit 316 and stole 52 bases.

New York—The Cubs will start their training trip Feb. 15. The pitchers and catchers will depart for Santa Catalina Island on that date.

Rockford Three-I club Pitcher Don Payne to Henryetta, Okla., club of Western Association for $400.

The St. Louis Browns gave eleven players for Dave Danforth, a Columbus A. A. pitcher, who formerly played with the White Sox.

St. Louis City, Mo.—Walter "Chink" Mattick of St. Louis, who will manage the St. Louis City baseball club, Western League, 1922, will serve in the capacity of first manager in the outfield. He will have a controlling financial interest in the club.

Lincoln—A six club, Nebraska State baseball league, will enter the 1922 baseball season with a salary limit of $1,800, and player limit of 14 to each club. It is planned to make it an eight club league later.
 The six clubs, comprising the league are: Lincoln, Grand Island, Beatrice, Norfolk, Hastings and David City.

Devine Must Battle to Get Basket Place

Iowa City, Ia.—Aubrey Devine, "wonder man" of the University of Iowa football eleven, who led the Western conference in individual scoring honors, promises to shine as brilliantly in basketball this season as he did on the gridiron. He has been a member of the Iowa quintet for the last two seasons, but is anxious to make the coming season his best in the cage sport.

After a week's rest following the close of the football season, which resulted in Iowa's championship triumph, Devine reported for basketball practice.

Aubrey is likely to be the third man in the history of athletics at Iowa to win nine "15's". He has been awarded six letters and his seventh is assured from football. There is no doubt of his winning a letter in track next spring, provided he doesn't break a leg. Basketball appears to be his hardest battle.

When Aubrey came out for the court game two seasons ago, he won a place as a regular with little trouble. Last year the task was more difficult; he was closely pressed for his place much of the time. This year it looks as if competition will be stiffer. There are seven or eight men capable of holding down a place on the "Varsity." Aubrey started as a forward. This season he is

NATIONAL LEAGUE USED 33,192 BALLS

New York—Thirty-three thousand one hundred and ninety-two baseballs were used in the National League last season, President Heydler reported at the annual league meeting. While many were used in practice, figured on a basis of 151 scheduled contests, the clubs used something like 215 balls each day of the season.

ST. LOUIS ADMITS 62,000 BOYS FREE

St. Louis, Mo.—The Knot Hole Gang, which was developed five years ago as a child welfare movement by the St. Louis National League Baseball club, had 62,000 members in attendance at games of the Cardinals here last season, Samuel Broadon, president of the club announced. Boys under 16 years old are admitted free to weekday games under the plan.

Likely to break in at stationary guard.
 Iowa basketball practice has been speeded. Coach Ashmore is drilling his men in a style of offense that partly gets away from the short passing game the Iowans have been accustomed to use. Last year the Iowa defense was one of the surprises of the "Big Ten" but an effort will be made to keep opposing scores lower than ever this winter.

Buff Defends Title Thursday Against Moore

Milwaukee—Three years ago, Johnny Buff, then an unknown boxer, was offered $75 to box a preliminary contest here on the same night Jack Sharkey defeated Jimmy Williams. Buff demanded $100. He was refused and did not box.

Thursday night in the same ring, Buff, a bantamweight champion, will receive a guarantee of $6,000 with a privilege of 25 per cent of the gate receipts, to meet Pal Moore of Memphis in a 10 round, no decision contest. This will be their second meeting. Moore met Buff before he became champion in an eight round, no decision contest at Jersey City and was credited with outpointing him.

Judging from advance indications the biggest crowd that ever witnessed a bantamweight contest in the mid-west will be on hand. Between 2,000 and 3,000 Chicagoans will go on half a dozen special trains.
 Thursday's contest will be the first important one for Buff since he won the championship from Pete Herman.

Badger Nine to Take Spring Training Trip

Madison—The University of Wisconsin baseball team will enter the south this year for the first spring training trip ever taken by the Badger varsity nine. The trip will be taken during the vacation period in April.

While no definite arrangements have been completed, the Wisconsin coach, hopes to have the Badgers meet the Alabama university, Mississippi university, and the Mississippi Agricultural college in two contests apiece. If unable to schedule with these schools he plans to play the University of Tennessee. Six games will be played on the trip.

The squad loses six regular men from the last year team, but strong material is available to fill in the holes. The graduation of Williams, star pitcher, who won every one of his games last season, is the hardest blow, while some difficulty will be had in locating a catcher to step into Dwyer's shoes.

Training will commence in the case shortly after Christmas, when a call will be sent for the players. The spring trip is expected to be a special inducement for material and a large squad is expected to turn out.

C. C. REPORT LISTS MANY ACTIVITIES

34 Civic Undertakings Reported by Holman in 13 Months' Report.

Summarizing his work of the past 13 months, the annual report of Lucian C. Holman, former manager of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce, has been submitted to the board of directors. It covers the period from Oct. 1, 1920 to Nov. 1, 1921.

The financial statement shows $21,28 on hand Oct. 31. Disbursements amounted to $29,557. A total of $3,083 is due on membership, and it is pointed out with $2,700 of this falling due Dec. 1, leaving a delinquency of $2,000 on memberships.

In the introduction, Mr. Holman states: "The Chamber of Commerce does not assume full credit for the accomplishment of all activities listed in this report. Most of these accomplishments have resulted from close cooperation between the Chamber and various individuals and organizations."

Exposition Illustrious Triumph. Among the most successful of its 34 undertakings was the recent Southern Wisconsin Industrial and Commercial Exposition which drew 16,000 people to this city from 102 neighboring places and resulted in being done by local merchants.

A traffic bureau was established in June for training shipments, quoting rates, making note adjustments, handling express company matters and giving routing instructions to shippers. It discovered and filed $1,590 in overcharge claims and $2,705 in loss and damage claims.

The Chamber was the headquarters of two large community campaigns. Aiding the directors of the Mercy Hospital, $20,000 was raised. A stock selling campaign was conducted for the Building & Loan association with $10,000 worth of stock sold. In addition $2,800 was raised for the Salvation Army.

Other Successful Campaigns. Other campaigns included aid to the Y. M. C. A. in its organization; the Y. M. C. A. in its annual drive; removal of snow from local highways in conjunction with Beloit; procuring of an appropriation from the city council for the erection of a bandstand; annual cleanup week and the procuring of 799 new memberships to the Chamber.

During the period of unemployment last winter the Chamber conducted a relief bureau which provided a clearing house for practically every charitable organization in the city and provided a means for the efficient handling of the city's charity and unemployment during the period of the emergency.

Entertained Railroad Heads. Several celebrations and public entertainments were held. These included the visits here of President R. E. Byram of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway and staff and of W. H. Miller, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway and staff; entertainment at the country club of 200 members of the Wisconsin Society of Chicago, native sons of the Badger state; opening of the Beloit-Janesville concrete highway; armistice and memorial day celebrations of 1920 and 1921. Along this line, the Chamber assisted in preparations for the entertainment of the state conventions of the master builders association; the Wisconsin music teachers' convention and the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

Or Phine Seck Site. An industrial survey of the city was made with maps and charts visualizing the statistics compiled and the analysis of 127 subjects fundamental and vital to the industrial developments of Janesville.

Thirty-seven inquiries were received during the year from firms seeking industrial locations here, proving, states Mr. Holman, the need of a building where firms may rent small space.

BIG YEAR PLANNED IN CITY BOYS' WORK

To Enroll More Than 200 in Various Live Wire Groups

Definite plans toward starting work of the live wire groups this year were made at a meeting of 16 boys at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night for the organization of the live wire group to have charge of the work. The most successful year since their establishment is predicted by A. C. Preston, who will have charge of this, the largest project in connection with the city boys' work program.

A new feature of the work this year and one which will tend toward the encouragement of better efforts will be dividing the term into two parts. The program will open the first Monday in January. The first period will continue until March 8, and the second to May 29, a total of 24 weeks instead of 16 as last year.

The new idea is that members who have no desire to work may be dropped and new ones added; those who have not been successful may also drop out—on the whole, a re-organization of the personnel. It gives boys whose marks fall behind others a chance to start again on an equal basis. Prizes both individual and for the groups will be offered.

Last year 200 boys participated and as many or more are expected this year with as many or more churches cooperating, Mr. Preston said. Thrift, the duties of the boys to their families, home, church, school, and themselves for the development of character will be emphasized. Programs of work along this line are being worked out by the city boys' work committee, composed of L. A. Maricham, J. T. Hooper, Rev. J. A. Melrose, E. A. Holt, Rev. Frank J. Scribner, Rev. F. G. Pierson, and A. C. Preston.

The meetings will be held Monday night of each week in the homes of the members of each group alternatively. The group leaders will meet at the Y. M. C. A. each meeting night at 5:30 for supper and then go to their group gatherings. Several of the groups are organizing. No account of the work done by the boys will be kept until the first of the year.

Inter-Sunday school competition in athletics and debate will be staged through the live wire work. The groups of one church will join in these contests against other churches.

Holland Raises Pay of Queen Wilhelmina The Hague—Holland has decided to raise the Crown revenue from 600,000 florins to 1,200,000 florins on the ground that it is necessary for the Queen to live in greater state when receiving noted foreign guests. She intends to regard the increase as a maximum and not to use it all unless it is necessary.

ESCAPED CONVICT HONORED BY KING

London—An amusing story of the King of Denmark's recent visit to Greenland was recently told by M. Aagaard, of the Danish legion, to members of the Danish Club in London.

As the royal yacht was approaching Greenland a dark speck became visible on the open sea. It proved to be a solitary Eskimo in his little kayak (native canoe). The Eskimo came on board and his loyalty in having braved the perils of the sea in such a frail craft assured him neediness to say, the warmest of welcomes. The King presented him with a cigar and what the Eskimos most highly prize, a rifle.

On landing the King described the incident to the Danish Commissioner in Greenland and asked him who the man was.

The Commissioner, in accents of horror replied: "The man's an escaped convict. He broke prison yesterday, stole a canoe and put to sea. We thought he had been drowned."
